

Tre Alee

Boston, Ma – United States

Bio- From the soultry sounds of her smooth, beautiful voice to her emotionally hard hitting lyrics, Tre Alee will leave you breathless. You will be an instant fan as she hooks you with her impressive vocal range and true to life lyrics. From singer to songwriter to published novelist Tre Alee will leave you gasping for breath as you beg for more.

At the tender age of six Tre began singing in the church choir where her father was a preacher. Since then her music has grown into her biggest passion and by 13 she was writing her own music. Over the years her music has blossomed across many genres: soul, R&B, jazz and gospel. Often she has been compared to Anita Baker, one of the biggest influences on her music career.

As a soloist she has performed at the legendary Apollo Theater in Harlem, NY, the Fleet Center now the TD Banknorth Garden, the Bayard Rustin Breakfast, as well as singing overseas in Germany, Jamaica, France and many other places domestically. Sticking to her roots she has performed with gospel recording artists Yolanda Adams, Lisa Page-Brooks of gospel group, Witness. Presently Tre is a member of Freda Battle and The Temple Worshipers, a phenomenal Boston area gospel recording group.

Influences- As an author Tre Alee's biggest influence has been E. Lynn Harris, as a singer, Anita Baker.
